Learning from Reviews, 24 - 28 June 2024

Safeguarding children is complex and reliant on services working together. Ongoing development of knowledge, skills and confidence is essential for multi-agency professionals working with children and families. One key area for strengthening multi-agency practice lies in Learning from Reviews.

MYTH BUSTING

Myth busting involves debunking false or misleading information that people believe to be true. By addressing common myths in children's safeguarding, practitioners and the families they work with can gain confidence in their understanding and decision-making.

AGENCY RESPONSIBILITIES

Different agencies have distinct duties and roles when providing support services. Understanding these responsibilities - such as when an agency will or won't be involved with a child and their family - is crucial for an effective multi-agency response. To assist professionals with their understanding of the roles and responsibilities of different agencies, HSCP has published a range of Practitioner Guides, developed in collaboration with relevant organisations in Hampshire.
